Musical Portraits

National Portrait
Gallery

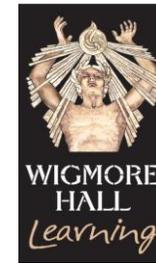

- Partnership project between Turtle Key Arts, National Portrait Gallery & Wigmore Hall which has been running yearly since 2010
- Summer holiday project for young people on the autism spectrum, aged 10 to 14
- Participants use portraits from the National Portrait Gallery to create artwork, facilitated by an Artist from the Gallery.
- Participants use the artwork created and the original portraits as a stimulus to create their own music, led by a professional Composer & musicians from the Wigmore Hall music ensemble “Ignite”
- Project ends with a live performance for friends and family on the Wigmore Hall stage
- It is free to all participants

Musical Portraits Band

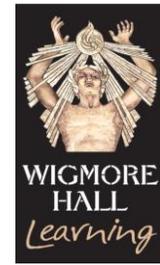

- Half term project for previous participants
- Opportunity to get together again / meet other participants
- Build on confidence and develop the skills & experience
- Creates ongoing opportunities and continuity of impact
- Long term links created with the project partner organisations

“Made friends for the first time ever!”

Participant

“It really makes me feel my job is worthwhile – so much of it is admin at my desk so it’s such a pleasure to be hands-on and see the impact of such great professionals”

Collaborator

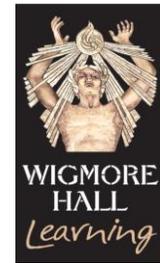

“Brilliant for my son to be who he is without being bullied.”
